

COUNTDOWN TO Community Care

With an introduction by Sir Roy Griffiths

It has taken until the "caring 90's" for community care to come into the spotlight. On 1 April 1993 the government's legislation came into full force, but rather than sweeping reforms, changes in the way we provide care for the disadvantaged in our society are being introduced gradually.

In Countdown to Community Care government policy is explained and views the changes, the potential advantages and problems, are expressed by those involved with or actually using the services: a GP, one of the new "care managers", patients and relatives.

TOPICS INCLUDE:

- What the changes mean
- Regional perspectives
- Community care and the fundholder
- Care management and mental health
- Old people's homes
- Care of the disabled

One Man's Medicine

An autobiography of Professor Archie Cochrane

Archibald L Cochrane with Max Blythe

Professor Archie Cochrane was a leading medical scientist for more than a quarter of a century. His thirty years' association with the Rhondda Fach – and his work there on reducing the suffering inflicted on whole communities by pneumoconiosis – is almost legendary, leading as it did to radical rethinking on the quality of health care and health services. This autobiography covers the twists and turns in his career which led to the insight of Effectiveness and Efficiency, his internationally acclaimed text on health services, published in 1972.

“... as pleasurable to read as a well constructed novel.”
